Re Item V

Reasoned statement with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: US 2001/015718 A1 (BATHICHE STEVEN N ET AL) 23 August 2001 (2001-08-23)

1. The document D1 is regarded as being the closest prior art to the subject-matter of claim 1, and shows (the references in parentheses applying to this document):

a method of navigating in a virtual three-dimensional environment in an electronic device (paragraph 64), wherein a movable physical member is controlled by applying a finger of a user to the movable physical member (paragraph 75-76, 108) and wherein navigation in one direction (paragraph 167) is achieved by removing the finger from the movable physical member and re-applying it to the movable physical member within a set time limit (paragraph 151).

The subject-matter of claim 1 differs from this known method in that a step upwards in a virtual three-dimensional environment is achieved by removing the finger from the movable physical member and re-applying it to the movable physical member within a set time limit.

The subject-matter of claim 1 is therefore new (Article 33(2) PCT).

2. The problem to be solved by the present invention may be regarded as providing the capability of moving a step upwards in a hierarchy of commands quickly and in an efficient way to the user.

The solution to this problem proposed in claim 1 of the present application is considered as involving an inventive step (Article 33(3) PCT) for the following reasons:

The navigation directions achieved by the method disclosed in D1 all lead to the display of additional information when the finger is re-applied to the movable physical member. There are no teachings in D1 pointing to this type of navigation, and such a step upwards must be achieved by depressing other buttons.

EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

International application No. PCT/EP 03/02302

A similar reasoning can be applied to independent claim 3, since its contains subject-matter corresponding to the subject-matter of claim 1. Therefore, also claim 3 is novel and inventive.

3. Claims 2 and 4 to 10 are dependent on claims 1 and 3 respectively, and as such also meet the requirements of the PCT with respect to novelty and inventive step.
